were contacted by the police. During this incident, she did not know whether or not Sam and/or Josh were in the main house.

At 1701 hours, I was alone with Mendell and showed him a photo line-up with Nathan Medina (photo #2) and five similars. Before showing Mendell this line-up, I read and explained to him the photo line-up admonishment off of the WCPD Photo Line-up Statement Form. Mendell told me he understood this admonishment. Mendell immediately pointed to #2 and said, " I think it was #2 that tried to kill me."

During the interviews and photo line-ups, Mendell and Longfellow were separated and had did have opportunity to converse with each other.

At 2300 hours, WCPD served a search warrant at Nathan Medina's residence in Martinez. A large black leather trench coat was one of the items seized from Medina's bedroom.

On 03/21/08 at 0930 hours, Nathan Medina turned himself in at WCPD. Detective McColgin took Medina into custody. Detective McColgin seized the black Sketchers shoes that he was wearing incident to his arrest.

At 1500 hours, I met with both Longfellow and Mendell separately at WCPD to show them the large trench coat seized from the search warrant, and the black shoes seized from Medina incident to his arrest.

Prior to showing Longfellow the coat and shoes, I gave her the following admonishment:

During this investigation some items were seized. The fact that these items are shown to you should not influence your judgment. These items may or may not be connected to this investigation. It is just as important to identify items as not being involved as it is to confirm its place in this case. You should not conclude nor guess that the items shown to you were a part of this crime. You are not obligated to identify any items.

Longfellow told me she understood this admonishment. I showed her the coat and shoes. Longfellow looked at the coat and said, " The sleeves and collar look familiar to me. The jacket I saw reflected the sun, so it could have been leather. The coat was black like this one." She looked at the shoes and said, " Very possible. Looks about right. I didn't stare at his shoes."

Prior to showing Mendell the coat and shoes, I gave him the same admonishment. He told me he understood this admonishment. I showed him the coat and shoes. Mendell looked at that coat and said, "It was a black leather jacket like this one. The pockets on this coat look familiar to me." He looked at the shoes and said, "It look like the shoes the suspect was wearing. The ridge soles on these shoes is what is keying me in to it. The shoes are also black like these."

I also asked both Longfellow and Mendell if they were able to remember
